Below is a composite of several sets of notes on related Irish families. Once we can make a definitive identification of Samuel Carroll's background, these notes can be distilled to the ones correct to this particular branch.

The Carrol family was extant in Ireland before the Anglo-Norman invasion. There were six original septs:

#1 Ely O'Carroll in Tipperary & Offaly

#2 Oriel in Monagan & Louth

[#4-6 were gone by the end of the 13th century]

Most Carrolls settled in the four cities stretching from Cork to Kilkenny.

Lists of O'Carrolls:

Prince Tipperary

Chief Leitrim

Prince Kilkenny

Prince King's County

Prince Tipperary

Lord Kerry

Prince Louth

Carroll Tombstones in the Kilmachonna, Lusmagh Graveyard:

#1 Bridget Carroll died Mar. 24th 1779, æ 27 (#103)

#2 William Carroll died June 10th 1778, æ 63 y.

Erected by his son James Carroll (#27)

#3 Catherine Carrole, alias, Danolon, dies April 17th 1793, æ 40 y.

Erected by her husband John Carrole (#29)

(N.B. due to the proximity of the gravestones of William & Catherine (#27 & 29, respectively), one would speculate that they were related.)

Mac(Carroll) or Mac Cearbhaill found:

1) South Leinster

2) see MacCarvill

This name is distinct from:

(O') Carroll or óCearbhaill

"ó Cearbaill -- I -- O Carrowill, O Carwell, O Carvill, O'Carroll, Carroll, Carvill; "des. of Cearball" (a very common Irish personal name). There are several distinct families so named, of which the following are the best known:

1) ó Cearball of Eile, who derive their name and descent from Cearball, lord of Eile, who fought at Clontarf. The head of this family was originally lord of all Eile, which comprised the baronies of Clonlisk and Ballybritt, in the present Offaly, and Ikerrin and Eliogarty, in co. Tipperary; but after the Anglo-Norman invasion, Ikerrin and Eliogarty became tributary to the Earl of Ormond, and only the portions of Eile sunsequently called Ely O'Carroll, remained in possession of O'Carroll, who resided at Birr. This family is now very numerous.

2) ó Cearball of Oriel. This family is of the same stock as the MacMahons and Maguires, and were chiefs of Oriel until about the period of the Anglo-Norman invasion, when they disappear from history.

Carroll Register Report

They are still numerous in Monaghan and Louth.

- 3) ó Cearball of Loch Lein, anciently chiefs of the Eoghanacht of Loch Lein, the district about Killarney, until dispossessed by the O'Donoghues.
- 4) ó Cearball of Ossory who are descended from Cearball, a celebrated chieftain of Ossory at the middle of the 9th century.
- 5) ó Cearball of Tara, a branch of the southern Ui Neill. This family disappeared from history at an early period.
- 6) ó Cearball of Calry, in Sligo and Leitrim. The MacBradys of Cavan are said, but erroneously, to be a branch of this family."

Another source has the Carrol family descending from Milesius, King of Spain & his son, Heber; and the O'Carroll family descending from the Kianachta tribe, founded by Kiann, son of Ollioll Ollum, the first absolute King of Munster, A.D. 177, and his consort Sabia, daughter of Con of the Hundred Battles, King of Ireland, A.D. 148.

Family founder: Kieran, son of Sedna, son of Trena, son of Tigernach, of the race of Kiam.

Original name: Ciarail, or Cearbhoil - meaning "Perverse".

First Generation

Samuell¹ CARROLL is believed to have been born in the northern part of Ireland^[1]. Samuel's name and place of birth, as well as the first name of his wife, are confirmed by his son Edward's death record^[1].

Samuel and his family emigrated from Ireland to Boston in 1801 - in fact, Edward's immigration paper was the oldest the curator at the Federal Archives had ever seen. We know that the family was wealthy enough for father, and later son, to be considered true landed Gentlemen - that is fairly wealthy and "retired". We also know, and this is confirmed by Edward's Naturalization Record, that the family's place of origin is "some part of the North of Ireland"^[2]. I theorize that a wealthy, landed Irish gave up everything and came to America because they were on the wrong side of the Irish Uprising of 1798 and had to flee. Proof, I hope, will be forthcoming.

Samuell married Sarah [surname not known]. All that we currently know of her is that she was born in Ireland and married to Samuel. Unfortunately, her maiden name is not given. These facts are confirmed by Edward's death record^[1].

They had one child:

2 i. Edward (1798-1866)

Generation: G4 Grandparents
Person Number: 124/125

Second Generation

2. Captain Edward² CARROLL (Samuel¹) was born in April 1798 in Northern Ireland, although his daughter Harriet's Death Record says that he was born at sea, this is not correct^[3,4]. Edward's birth year is estimated from his DR and confirmed by his immigration information. He died of Dropsy in Lynn, Essex co., MA on 19 October 1866; when he was æ 69y.: 6m^[1]. Edward is buried in Old or Western Burial Ground in Lynn, Essex co., MA.

Edward emigrated from Ireland to Boston with his parents in 1801, æ 2 y^[2]. Edward was naturalized on the First Tuesday of November in 1829^[2]. He lived on Union Street, Lynn, Essex co., MA at the time of his death^[1].

Edward was a wealthy man and listed his age as 52 and his occupation as "Morroco Dresser" [1850 census listing]. Yet at the time of his naturalization in 1829, his occupation was given as "Gentleman" [e.g. "wealthy and retired"]^[1].

The Carroll Family 1850 Census entry runs as follows:
